

Michael Dijk, a personal portfolio site

Contents

Michael Dijk, a personal portfolio site	1
User stories	2

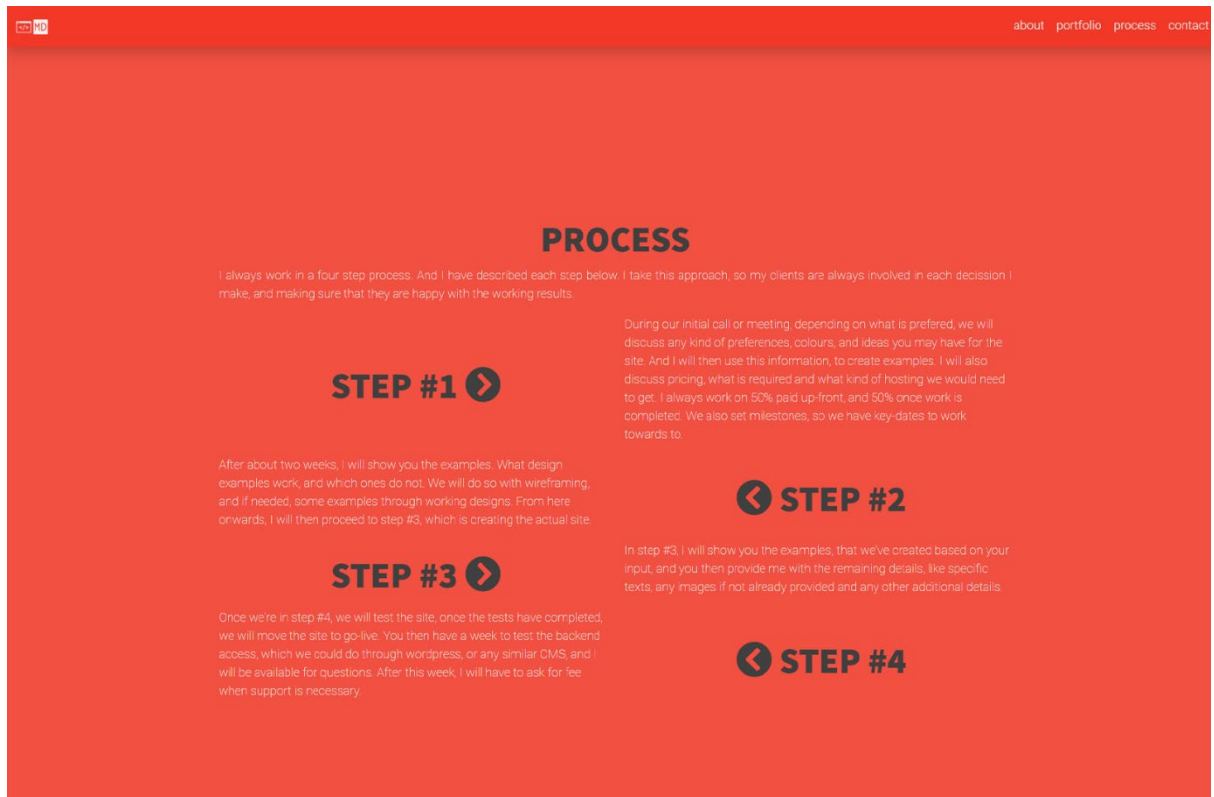

User stories

As a potential customer, I want to have an overview of previous websites created, what skills was used, and a link towards that website to show me the working example

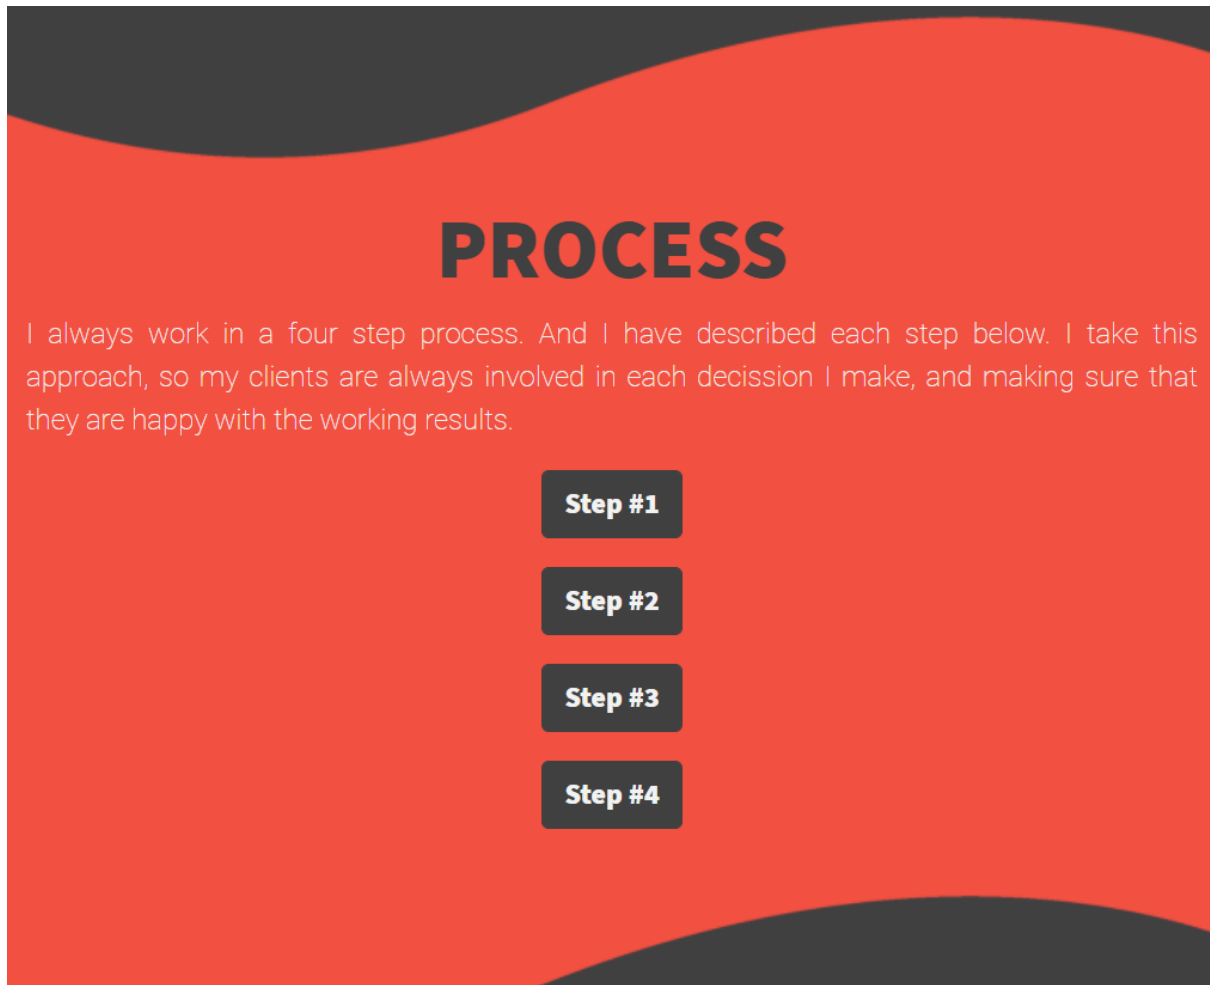

As a potential employer, I want to have an insight in the thought-process of how a design is coming to life, from A to Z

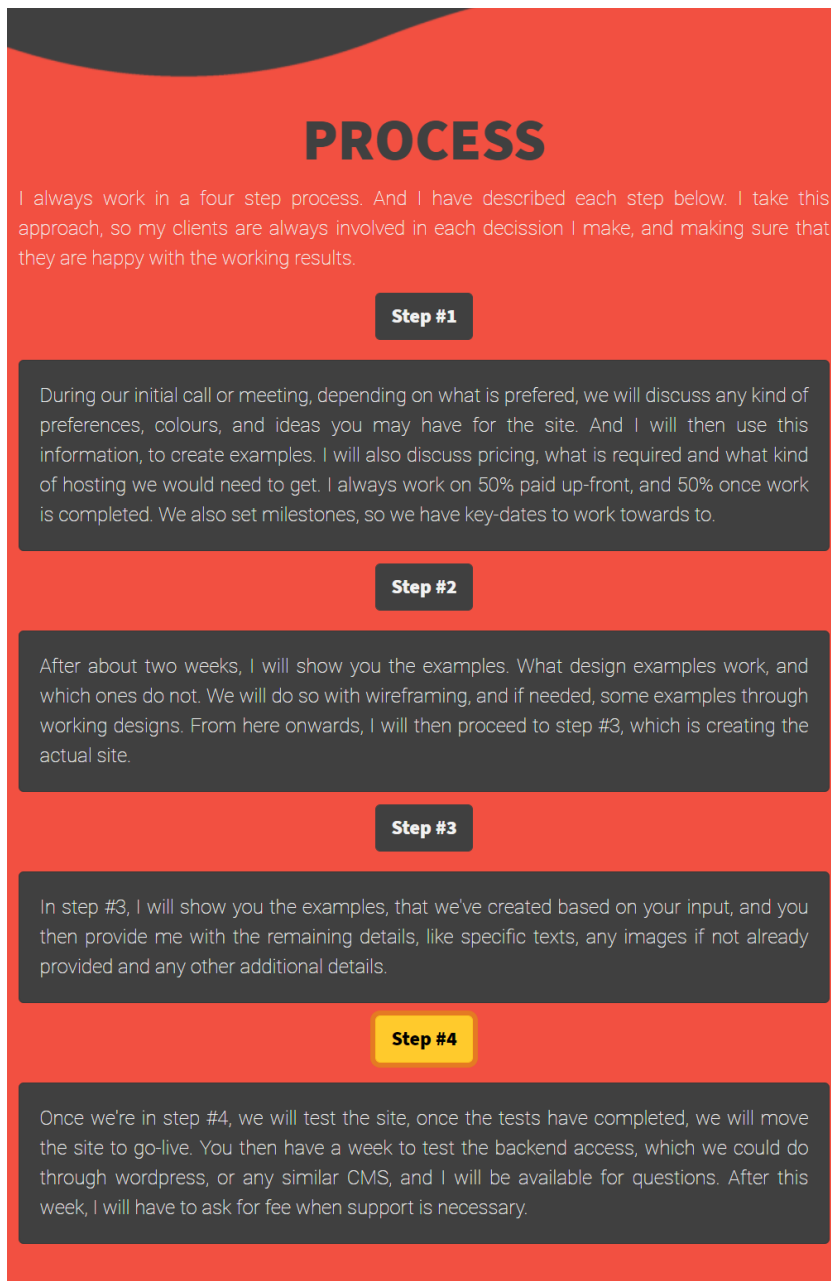

Large desktop view:

Mobile view:

Mobile view expanded:

PROCESS

I always work in a four step process. And I have described each step below. I take this approach, so my clients are always involved in each decision I make, and making sure that they are happy with the working results.

Step #1

During our initial call or meeting, depending on what is preferred, we will discuss any kind of preferences, colours, and ideas you may have for the site. And I will then use this information, to create examples. I will also discuss pricing, what is required and what kind of hosting we would need to get. I always work on 50% paid up-front, and 50% once work is completed. We also set milestones, so we have key-dates to work towards to.

Step #2

After about two weeks, I will show you the examples. What design examples work, and which ones do not. We will do so with wireframing, and if needed, some examples through working designs. From here onwards, I will then proceed to step #3, which is creating the actual site.

Step #3

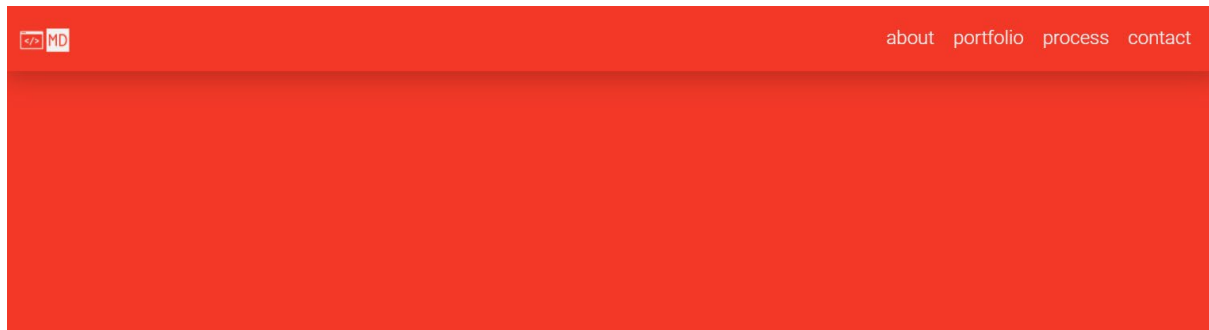

In step #3, I will show you the examples, that we've created based on your input, and you then provide me with the remaining details, like specific texts, any images if not already provided and any other additional details.

Step #4

Once we're in step #4, we will test the site, once the tests have completed, we will move the site to go-live. You then have a week to test the backend access, which we could do through wordpress, or any similar CMS, and I will be available for questions. After this week, I will have to ask for fee when support is necessary.

As a new visitor to the site, I want to be able to easily navigate between sections and find the menu for the site

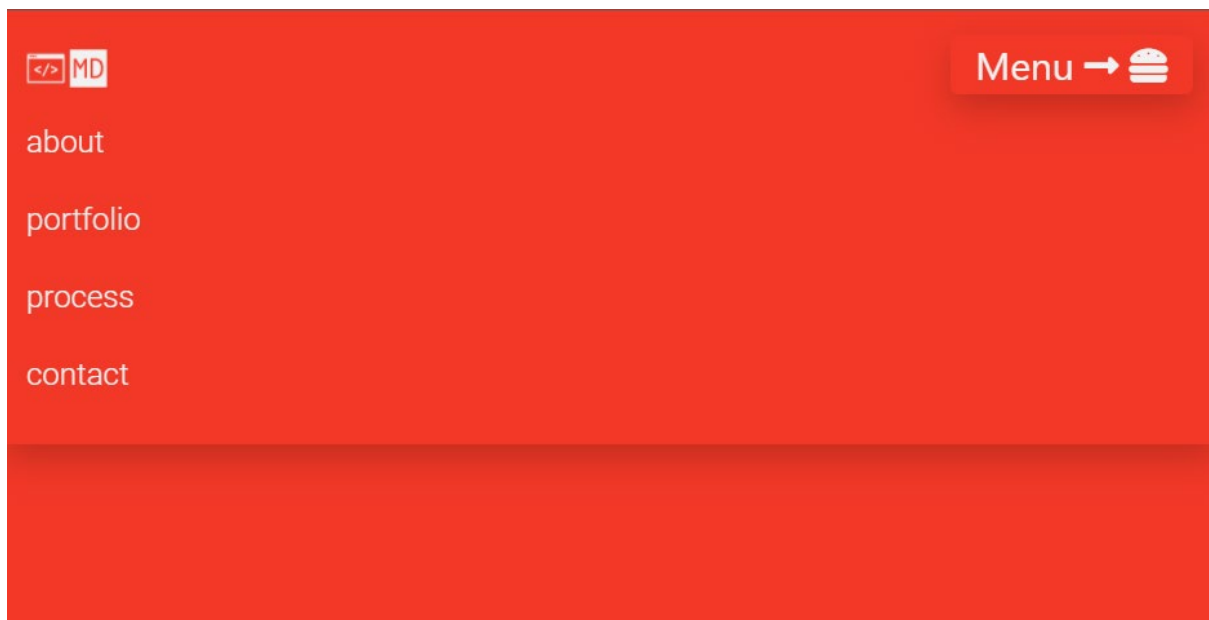

Desktop view menu

Mobile view menu

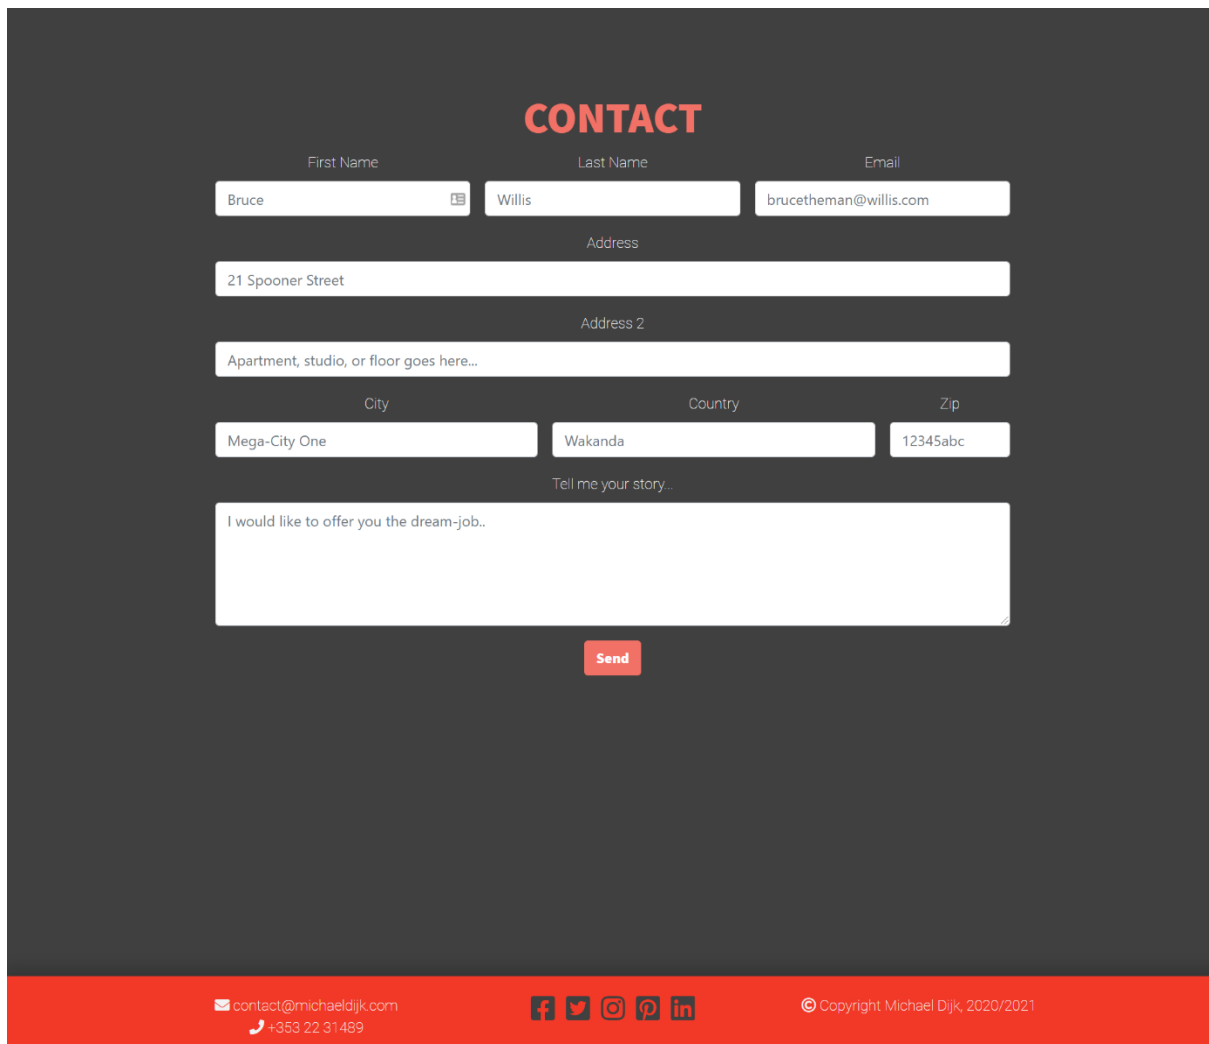

Mobile view menu expanded

As a potential customer, I want to be able to contact the site owner, find details on a contact number, and fill in a contact form to allow me to ask questions

Desktop view

A desktop view of a contact form on a dark gray background. The title "CONTACT" is centered at the top in a large, bold, red font. Below the title, the form consists of several input fields arranged in a grid-like fashion. The first row contains three fields: "First Name" with the value "Bruce", "Last Name" with the value "Willis", and "Email" with the value "brucetheman@willis.com". The second row has a single wide field for "Address" with the value "21 Spooner Street". The third row has a single wide field for "Address 2" with the value "Apartment, studio, or floor goes here...". The fourth row contains three fields: "City" with the value "Mega-City One", "Country" with the value "Wakanda", and "Zip" with the value "12345abc". Below these is a large text area for "Tell me your story.." with the value "I would like to offer you the dream-job..". At the bottom center of the form is a red "Send" button. The footer is a solid red bar containing contact information on the left, social media icons in the center, and a copyright notice on the right.

CONTACT

First Name: Bruce
Last Name: Willis
Email: brucetheman@willis.com

Address: 21 Spooner Street

Address 2: Apartment, studio, or floor goes here...

City: Mega-City One
Country: Wakanda
Zip: 12345abc

Tell me your story..
I would like to offer you the dream-job..

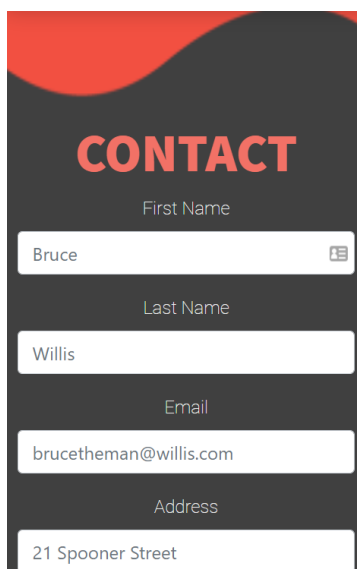

Send

contact@michaeldijk.com
+353 22 31489

f t i p in

© Copyright Michael Dijk, 2020/2021

Mobile view

A mobile view of the contact form, showing a vertical stack of input fields. The title "CONTACT" is at the top in a large, bold, red font. Below it, the fields are stacked vertically: "First Name" (Bruce), "Last Name" (Willis), "Email" (brucetheman@willis.com), and "Address" (21 Spooner Street). The form is set against a dark gray background with a red wavy shape at the top.

CONTACT

First Name: Bruce
Last Name: Willis
Email: brucetheman@willis.com
Address: 21 Spooner Street